Great Hockham News Sheet

Issue No 545
February 2024

Editorial

I always think that the months of January and February can feel a bit flat after the last part of the previous year with all that takes place, Halloween, Bonfire night and then Christmas, with the village looking so wonderful. Without properties bedecked with lights and decorations it can seem a bit dull, but you don't have to go far or look too hard to find things to brighten your day. With a little bit of effort you can find snowdrops poking delicate white heads above ground and looking to the farm fields flocks of Fieldfare or Lapwing. Recently I was lucky to see a flock of 200 + Fieldfare in the village, and a walk in the woods when the trees are bare can reveal woodpeckers drumming and if you are very lucky you may even get a glimpse of our largest finch the Hawfinch.

This time of year, although often wet and cold, can be a great time to explore the forest and surrounding areas; you just never know what you might see. So wrap up warm put your boots on and enjoy the beauty all around us, that which is Thetford forest, our part of Norfolk.

Love and Ash Wednesday ♥

On February 14th we celebrate two important days in the Wayland Group - St Valentine's Day and Ash Wednesday (the beginning of Lent). For those of you who are romantic, you will be planning a meal out, or a visit to the theatre and for the rest of us we will be at Breckles Church at 6pm for a special service to celebrate Ash Wednesday.

'With a little bit of luck' to quote Alfred P. Doolittle from the stage version of 'My Fair Lady' you might just be able to squeeze both in!

Both events are connected. St Valentine's Day is all about love and we look forward to all the weddings in our group of parishes in 2024 and no doubt more to come. With St Paul's Epistle 1 Corinthians 13 in mind 'And now faith, hope, and love abide and the greatest of these is love', we all know that love should be at the centre of any marriage and any relationship. But with Ash Wednesday in mind, as we begin Lent, so is forgiveness.

In 1995 having planned to climb the second highest high mountain in Ireland, Beenkeragh, whilst on holiday with my wife Marian and my two sons, I know what love and forgiveness are all about. I planned the route, but having made many errors in map reading and equipment, we found ourselves lost on the top of the mountain, then stupidly, split into two parties, but eventually found ourselves home. After a shower, change of clothes and sitting around a family meal with a log fire burning, I announced, 'Sadly everything went wrong today, it was my mistake - I am not perfect and I do make mistakes!' I knew we could have lost our lives, or been injured. However, we all learnt two things as a family - we were able to give and receive forgiveness and we could give and receive love. My sons have never forgotten that day but it brought us even closer together as a family. Surely this is what February 14th 2024 is all about. No more mountain climbing for us - Marian and I go for more gentle walks!

With love to you all (and I mean it)

Revd. Adrian Bell

Holy Trinity Church – Fundraising Update

The proceeds from our Mexican Fiesta fundraiser boosted church funds and enabled us to pay for the urgent weatherproofing work on the north and west walls and vestry roof which was completed before Christmas.

As you may be aware, the church architect has advised that the nave roof will need to be replaced by 2026 which will be a huge project costing in the region of £100,000. We may be able to secure some grants but a good proportion of this figure would need to come from the now depleted church accounts.

SAVE THE NAVE! will be our campaign call. And this is where you can help. We will be organising events to raise the necessary funds to preserve Hockham's medieval church and its historic wall paintings, and your continued support would be greatly appreciated. Look out for our forthcoming 60s and 70s revival nights - dates to be announced shortly.

Hockham's History

Little Hockham (Hocham Parva)

Little Hockham was already considered a lost village in 1955. It forms a boundary with Great Hockham by a small tributary stream that increases in volume where the local sewage works outfall is and has another stream dividing it with Illington a village with well documented Anglo-Saxon connections.

Little Hockham has its own separate entry in the Domesday Book, held in 1086 by Roger Bigod, but was small even then, with Ailwin having a half a ploughland and there were an additional three bordars and two serfs. In 1066 the population was nine.

Information of early post Domesday is very scarce, but anyone who reads Blomefield's accounts of the village will realise he had seen a number of older documents relating to the Abbey De Bec in Normandy, who owned and controlled some of the lands of Little Hockham.

There has always been a debate as to whether there was a church there and with Illington and Great Hockham nearby it seems that another church may have been one too many, but if there was, it was almost certainly a wooden structure.

The current hall holds a few secrets, as the Victorian façade hides a Tudor structure and references are given in some documents to likely owners. People such as William De Hockham, John Payn (was this the man who named Payns Hill), and Frances, wife of Borage Martin, were certainly residents; Thomas Richardson, John Shuckforth, Robert Kinge and John Lens, likely owners of the main property.

Over the years the field system had become complicated by strips being handed down through generations and it was likely Benoni Mallet (an opulent farmer from Dunton) who bought up the strips making them into one estate, apart from a section called the Glebe that the church held out steadfastly on, till finally selling it. Maps show that the Partridge family finally joined the estate of Little and Great Hockham together in the mid 1820s, and with a few land swaps with the Wretham estate, formed the estate we know today.

Look closely at the estate map of 1830 that's on the wall of the village hall and the Eagle, and you can see other properties in Little Hockham, most of which were demolished in the 1950s.

Of course, the estate also owned the land where the pine forest now grows under the Forestry Commission stewardship, that land being sold in the 1930s when the Partridge family finally sold the estate.

Little Hockham Lane was an addition in 1790, the original road (Churchbridge Lane) going in front of the hall and joining where the road kinks to the left, up the hill on Little Hockham Lane. This was the hall owner wanting to increase the size of the park, extending the small road to the warren (the start of Little Hockham Lane) and stopping people going past his front door.

Little Hockham Hall, was called Furze Moor Farm or Heath Farm pre 1900 and it was in the late 1800s when the property was increased in size as a home for the Lord of The Manor, as Great Hockham Hall and the sporting rights were rented out to wealthy shooting clients. It was one of the great sporting estates of its day, interrupted by WW1 when pheasant shooting was banned. Michael Home in his Breckland novels refers to the village having two squires, which was quite factual.

One fact that needs documenting is that the village Reading Room, that was on the plot near the defibrillator, was originally a converted greenhouse taken from Little Hockham Hall.

Norfolk Wildlife Trust

Breckland Local Group

We started the new year with a Brecks reserves update from Amy Plows, NWT Assistant reserves officer for the Brecks. For a very cold January evening it was a good turn-out and Amy was pleased to meet so many members and non-members. She gave us an excellent and concise update and insight into the work of the Brecks team, both on the ground and behind the scenes.

Wednesday February 14th at 7.30pm we have Martin Hosier, local photographer talking about wildlife from a warmer clime, but he's kept us guessing as to exactly where. This is after a short AGM to which all NWT members are welcome.

Commencing at 7.30pm at The Methodist Centre, High Street, Watton. IP25 6AB. Cost is £3 non-members, £2 members. Refreshments will be served.

Fiona Roat

Great Hockham Primary School & Nursery

The children have had a brilliant start to 2024, with great attitudes to learning and really concentrating on their work, to produce the best that they are capable of.

Five new children have joined our School this year. All of them have settled in and are enjoying making new friends and learning at Great Hockham.

All classes have been focusing on producing brilliant writing this term. The children are thinking really carefully about the vocabulary they use and the effect it will have on the reader. They have also been working hard on improving their letter formation and their presentation in books. We are really impressed at the progress they are making and the children are really proud of what they are achieving. Keep up the great work!

We are celebrating NSPCC Numbers' Day on 2nd February and will have a focus on Maths and our love of numbers but also looking at how children can keep themselves safe and who to go to if they have any worries or concerns.

Dorothy & John Unsworth

As many of you reading this know, Dorothy and John Unsworth lived in Great Hockham for many years before moving to Kent to have assisted living and nursing care. Dorothy was often seen most mornings walking their little dog Penny from Scotgate Close to the playing fields and she regularly attended the coffee mornings in the Edinburgh Hall making many, many friends in the village. John was a warden at the church and was also president of the Gardening Club, particularly enjoying the roses in their front garden in Scotgate Close.

Dorothy sadly died in October 2022 and John in June 2023. The family will be having their ashes interred in Holy Trinity Great Hockham Church on Saturday 23rd March at midday.

Refreshments will then be available at The Crown in Great Ellingham, and if any friends and neighbours would like to attend the service and buffet, please telephone Phil or myself (Christine) on 01953 881579.
